Dear Stuart,

I am pleased to extend my warmest greetings on the occasion of your retirement from George Mason University.

Your many accomplishments during your time with the institution reflect your hard work and commitment to service. As a professor, you have made a substantial difference in the lives of others; there are few endeavors more rewarding than helping students prepare for successful careers. You have also contributed so much to the Commonwealth and the study of global trade and national security law. I certainly benefitted by having you participate in international trade missions during my term as Governor. I commend you for your 55 years of service.

I know that you will have many fond recollections of the friendships that you have developed over your career. Dear Professor Malawer:

It is my honor to recognize your 12 years of service as a Board Member of the Virginia Economic Development Partnership and subsequently its International Trade Advisory Committee.

Your gubernatorial appointments by four Virginia governors and participation as a delegate in three gubernatorial trade missions to Asia evidence your broadly recognized expertise and professionalism in the fields of international law and international trade. This is further evidenced by your law degree and Ph.D. from two outstanding universities (Cornell Law School and the University of Pennsylvania) and further study at Oxford University.

I note that George Mason University recognized you with the title of Distinguished Service Professor of Law and International Trade, with the Distinguished Faculty Member of the Year Award, and the Virginia State Bar awarded you the Hardy Cross Dillard Award for international service. I also note that during your tenure on the Board of VEDP, Virginia was ranked twice by CNBC as the "Top State for Business."

I've always appreciated your discussion of complicated legal, economic, and policy issues concerning trade promotion and foreign investment. I particularly appreciated your perspectives on state economic development incentives and the role public universities can play in the economic development in our Commonwealth. Your focus on supporting all regions of Virginia was especially important.

I very much look forward to working with you and to your continued service with us and with the Commonwealth of Virginia.
